

THE MEMPHIS DAILY APPEAL—TUESDAY, APRIL 19, 1859.

Daily Appeal.

MEMPHIS.

TUESDAY, APRIL 19, 1859.

Largest Circulation in the City.

Reading Matter on Every Page.

The Official Journal of the City.

DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

FOR GOVERNOR,

ISHAM G. HARRIS.

To the Democracy of the Tenth Congressional District.

To avoid mistakes as to the time of holding the coming election, we propose the joint meeting of intelligent delegates from Congressmen, Senator and Postmaster, we have fixed upon Wednesday, the 27th inst., as the most suitable day, and take the names of all the delegates from the several counties in the district of the State.

H. L. HOWARD,
W. H. CARROLL,
JNO. M. CARMACK,
Central Committee for Western District.

APRIL 18, 1859.

“FIFIES OF EIGHTEEN FORTY.”

The leaders and press of the Whig-American-Know-Nothing-Black-Republican-Opposition party are putting to task their pen and pencil to write every line of the “fifties of eighteen forty.” For some reason or other, they have thus far singularly failed to impress the masses of the people with the conviction that there are no friends to the re-boarding of the Southern. Thus, to speak of material obstacles in the way. They may talk about ruin, bankruptcy and disaster, but they cannot reduce the price of cotton to five cents, they cannot bring negroes down to six dollars, they cannot bring slaves down to four dollars, nor can they bring the price of “eighties forty.”

EDWARD APPEAL: The excessive valt of gold and silver, and the high cost of living, have led the Southern to poverty, as was the case in 1840, when, by overtrading and speculation, with the evils of a sudden bankruptcy, the country was thrown into debt, and many of them driven into bankruptcy. Under such circumstances it was an easy matter to persuade the people that a change of government was necessary, and that the very survival of the Democratic party depended on the continuance of the policy of the party.

The condition of affairs at present is quite different. The earth has yielded abundant crops, and cotton is now commanding twelve cents per pound, and the negroes, who are here, cost less than ever. The weather is singularly kind to us. We are threatened with a cessation at Slave plantation. The Master has sent up a crew to re-thatch the lower houses, and they will be forced to flee to death, or be drowned out. Cotton is held at full price. Midling 12½ to 13½ cents. Mr. Nichols has a good exchange, selling day to day. J. S. DISCOUNT.

THE RIVER BELOW.

AUSTIN, TEXAS, CIVIC, April 17, 1859.

EDWARD APPEAL: The excessive valt of gold and silver, and the high cost of living, have led the Southern to poverty, as was the case in 1840, when, by overtrading and speculation, with the evils of a sudden bankruptcy, the country was thrown into debt, and many of them driven into bankruptcy.

Under such circumstances it was an easy matter to persuade the people that a change

of government was necessary, and that the very

survival of the Democratic party depended on the continuance of the policy of the party.

THE RIVER BELOW.

AUSTIN, TEXAS, CIVIC, April 17, 1859.

EDWARD APPEAL: The excessive valt of

gold and silver, and the high cost of living, have led the Southern to poverty, as was the case in 1840, when, by overtrading and speculation, with the evils of a sudden bankruptcy, the country was thrown into debt, and many of them driven into bankruptcy.

Under such circumstances it was an easy

matter to persuade the people that a change

of government was necessary, and that the very

survival of the Democratic party de-

pended on the continuance of the policy

of the party.

THE RIVER BELOW.

AUSTIN, TEXAS, CIVIC, April 17, 1859.

EDWARD APPEAL: The excessive valt of

gold and silver, and the high cost of living, have led the Southern to poverty, as was the case in 1840, when, by overtrading and speculation, with the evils of a sudden bankruptcy, the country was thrown into debt, and many of them driven into bankruptcy.

Under such circumstances it was an easy

matter to persuade the people that a change

of government was necessary, and that the very

survival of the Democratic party de-

pended on the continuance of the policy

of the party.

THE RIVER BELOW.

AUSTIN, TEXAS, CIVIC, April 17, 1859.

EDWARD APPEAL: The excessive valt of

gold and silver, and the high cost of living, have led the Southern to poverty, as was the case in 1840, when, by overtrading and speculation, with the evils of a sudden bankruptcy, the country was thrown into debt, and many of them driven into bankruptcy.

Under such circumstances it was an easy

matter to persuade the people that a change

of government was necessary, and that the very

survival of the Democratic party de-

pended on the continuance of the policy

of the party.

THE RIVER BELOW.

AUSTIN, TEXAS, CIVIC, April 17, 1859.

EDWARD APPEAL: The excessive valt of

gold and silver, and the high cost of living, have led the Southern to poverty, as was the case in 1840, when, by overtrading and speculation, with the evils of a sudden bankruptcy, the country was thrown into debt, and many of them driven into bankruptcy.

Under such circumstances it was an easy

matter to persuade the people that a change

of government was necessary, and that the very

survival of the Democratic party de-

pended on the continuance of the policy

of the party.

THE RIVER BELOW.

AUSTIN, TEXAS, CIVIC, April 17, 1859.

EDWARD APPEAL: The excessive valt of

gold and silver, and the high cost of living, have led the Southern to poverty, as was the case in 1840, when, by overtrading and speculation, with the evils of a sudden bankruptcy, the country was thrown into debt, and many of them driven into bankruptcy.

Under such circumstances it was an easy

matter to persuade the people that a change

of government was necessary, and that the very

survival of the Democratic party de-

pended on the continuance of the policy

of the party.

THE RIVER BELOW.

AUSTIN, TEXAS, CIVIC, April 17, 1859.

EDWARD APPEAL: The excessive valt of

gold and silver, and the high cost of living, have led the Southern to poverty, as was the case in 1840, when, by overtrading and speculation, with the evils of a sudden bankruptcy, the country was thrown into debt, and many of them driven into bankruptcy.

Under such circumstances it was an easy

matter to persuade the people that a change

of government was necessary, and that the very

survival of the Democratic party de-

pended on the continuance of the policy

of the party.

THE RIVER BELOW.

AUSTIN, TEXAS, CIVIC, April 17, 1859.

EDWARD APPEAL: The excessive valt of

gold and silver, and the high cost of living, have led the Southern to poverty, as was the case in 1840, when, by overtrading and speculation, with the evils of a sudden bankruptcy, the country was thrown into debt, and many of them driven into bankruptcy.

Under such circumstances it was an easy

matter to persuade the people that a change

of government was necessary, and that the very

survival of the Democratic party de-

pended on the continuance of the policy

of the party.

THE RIVER BELOW.

AUSTIN, TEXAS, CIVIC, April 17, 1859.

EDWARD APPEAL: The excessive valt of

gold and silver, and the high cost of living, have led the Southern to poverty, as was the case in 1840, when, by overtrading and speculation, with the evils of a sudden bankruptcy, the country was thrown into debt, and many of them driven into bankruptcy.

Under such circumstances it was an easy

matter to persuade the people that a change

of government was necessary, and that the very

survival of the Democratic party de-

pended on the continuance of the policy

of the party.

THE RIVER BELOW.

AUSTIN, TEXAS, CIVIC, April 17, 1859.

EDWARD APPEAL: The excessive valt of

gold and silver, and the high cost of living, have led the Southern to poverty, as was the case in 1840, when, by overtrading and speculation, with the evils of a sudden bankruptcy, the country was thrown into debt, and many of them driven into bankruptcy.

Under such circumstances it was an easy

matter to persuade the people that a change

of government was necessary, and that the very

survival of the Democratic party de-

pended on the continuance of the policy

of the party.

THE RIVER BELOW.

AUSTIN, TEXAS, CIVIC, April 17, 1859.

EDWARD APPEAL: The excessive valt of

gold and silver, and the high cost of living, have led the Southern to poverty, as was the case in 1840, when, by overtrading and speculation, with the evils of a sudden bankruptcy, the country was thrown into debt, and many of them driven into bankruptcy.

Under such circumstances it was an easy

matter to persuade the people that a change

of government was necessary, and that the very

survival of the Democratic party de-

pended on the continuance of the policy

of the party.

THE RIVER BELOW.

AUSTIN, TEXAS, CIVIC, April 17, 1859.

EDWARD APPEAL: The excessive valt of